PREFACE

International Conference on Community Development (ICCD) is an annual conference held since 2012, when the Association of Muslim Community in ASEAN (AMCA) was established. In 2021, the 8th ICCD is held by inviting scholars and practitioners around the globe to discuss community development from various perspectives and across fields of study. One of the key topics discussed is how Covid-19 affects our life and how to solve any problems associated with it.

The 8th ICCD was conducted virtually, which was presented in a different and better way. A conference is commonly held for about three to five days. In contrast, ICCD-8 was conducted for about three months from September-November 2021 in order that the presenters and participants have more time to discuss every single issue in detail. Every week there was only 1 series, consisting of 5 presenters and 1 international keynote speaker to discuss certain issues, and it ran for 8 series. In the end, one day session was held to invite some more international speakers for a plenary session, and was continued with 6 parallel sessions. More than 700 participants totally attended it. The ICCD-8 also equipped the participants with a workshop on article writing to encourage the participants to publish qualified articles in reputable international journals. The presenters and participants are from 7 countries in ASEAN such as; Indonesia, Singapore, Malaysia, Brunei Darussalam, The Philippines, Thailand, and Cambodia. Any input you think would make ICCD better now and in the future, we want to hear it!

Abstract. The Covid-19 pandemic is a test of the global health system and other systems. At the global level, the World Health Organization (WHO), as the International's Institutional notes, coordinates global laboratory surveillance of COVID-19 variants modelled on the established Global Influenza Surveillance and Response System (GISRS). Local institutional models in the face of pandemics becoming endemics are also important and needed today. This paper aims to formulate Locally Community Institutional Sustainability Model in Environmental Isolation Facing Pandemic Becomes Endemics. DPSIR model aims to inventory key-indicators related role of locally institutional. MDS model to calculate the sustainability index of locally institutional roles, followed by leverage analysis, Monte Carlo analysis. ISM to formulate the locally institutional model in environmental isolation Facing Pandemics Becomes Endemic. The analysis of the sustainability of the role of locally community-based institutional is 74.55 % (fairly sustainable). The attribute of leverage is the Competency improvement of The Supreme Leader of Local Community Resources (Girang Seurat, Puun, Tangkesan, Kakolotan Lembur) with Root Mean Square (RMS) 4.51. The formulate of locally community-based institutional structural model in environmental isolation are: (i) The key of Institutional (Puun as The Supreme Leader, Girang Seurat as Puun's Maid, Tangkesan as Puun's Advisor, and Kokolotan Lembur as Tangkesan's Advisor) have highest Driver Power and lowest Dependence.
